

Wall Street's Punic War.
The New Steel Baby.
Kuhn, Loeb-Morgan Fight.
Watch Carefully.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1922.)

Cities used to fight with soldiers and ferocity. Now financiers with dollars and cunning. Two hundred years before Christ two cities looked at each other and hated each other. Across the Mediterranean, Rome, city of Gentiles, hated and envied the wealth of Carthage, Semitic ruler of trade. Carthage ruled for awhile, then Cato's advice was taken. Carthage was destroyed. They murdered everyone, ploughed where the city had stood, and scattered salt that grass might never grow. Carthage never came back.

Much later, in 1914, J. P. Morgan and Company, great Gentile money house, and Kuhn, Loeb, great Semitic money house, studied and hated each other across the short distance that separates 52 William street from the corner of Broad and Wall streets in New York.

The Jewish house had steadily the better of it, growing while Morgan's, after the great trust, dwindled. When at last J. P. Morgan, the Wall street dinosaur, died, it was felt that he went just in time to escape knowing that Schiff had beaten him. Morgan left little money as money goes. His works of art were stored free of charge in a public museum, and many of the finest were retained to prosperous competitors. It was a 52 William street victory.

Then, as at Carthage, something happened. Nineteen hundred and fourteen brought the war. Kuhn, Loeb was a partner-ship all born in Germany. Morgan's was not only NOT German-born, but at heart three-quarters English. One was as good an American firm as the other, but not as good an English firm.

Morgan's got all the war business, handled all the billions provided for England by America and France, spent the money, and presumably made the usual patriotic commission.

Now comes another stage in the money war that in our day replaces Punic wars, Wars of Roses, Guelphs, Ghibellines, etc. The world war is over, and Morgan's has lost Davison, its front brain. It is as though Rome had lost Caesar at the beginning of the wars in Gaul.

Rome depended on individuals, Carthage did not. Morgan's knows what Davison knew. Nobody there could arrive daily to see the Secretary of War even before the reporters got around, as Davison did. In Kuhn, Loeb's, there are quiet little men, sitting at nicely polished desks, with names you never heard of, any one of them able to run the firm and give what is left of Morgan's the fight of its life.

What will be the next step in our Wall Street dollar war? Kuhn, Loeb now gives birth to a steel trust, as Morgan's did years ago. There is a good fight hidden in that. Curiously enough, Untermyer, a Jewish lawyer, is fighting the Kuhn, Loeb Steel Trust. You did not find any great Gentile lawyer fighting Morgan when he had his little trust at the breast. Gentiles stick together—that explains some things in history.

Somebody is "short selling" the stock of the Kuhn, Loeb Trust before it is even quite born. Who is it?

Somebody has supplied money to buy the stock that does not exist as fast as it is offered. Who is it?

What will the stock do? What is its character?

You remember about the first great Morgan Steel Trust. They called it United States Steel. Carnegie, whose properties formed the bulk of it, would not even take the common stock as a gift. He called the bonds—except the special kind he got—water. The common and preferred stock he called "pure air," not even water.

Now the bonds are gilt-edged, the preferred stock sells far above par and Gary, who knew the company, as Luther knew the Bible, buys the common (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

SENATORS URGE PROBE TO STOP PROFITEERS IN COAL BUSINESS

Would Prosecute Dealers If Reports of Boost in Prices Are Confirmed.

WANT HOOVER TO EXPLAIN

Walsh and Borah Back of Move for Inquiry by Labor Committee.

By International News Service.
Unless Secretary Hoover is able to demonstrate his ability to secure reductions or prevent increases in soft coal prices, the Senate Labor Committee will proceed with its investigation of price-fixing agreements with the operators and call upon the Attorney General to secure indictments for alleged profiteering if the evidence warrants such action. Senator Walsh (Dem.) of Massachusetts announced yesterday following a conference with Senator Borah (Rep.) of Idaho, the committee chairman.

Hoover Must Show Them.
Senator Borah himself declined to discuss further the conference he had with Secretary Hoover at the Borah residence Friday night, but it was understood the committee was prepared to go forward with its investigation unless Hoover was able to make good his promise to see that the public is protected from coal profiteering by either the operators or the retailers.

It was made plain that the situation will be permitted to rest with Hoover until he has had sufficient opportunity to convince Borah and Walsh and other Senators who are taking an active interest in the matter that there have been no increases in coal prices or that he has been able to restore prices to what they were prior to the meeting with the operators on May 31.

Walsh declared the "most important phase" of the situation today was what steps Hoover would now take as a result of his conference with Borah.
"The conference between Mr. Hoover and Senator Borah developed a fundamental basic difference of opinion on the question of whether there has been any increase in soft coal 'contract' prices as a result of Mr. Hoover's price-fixing agreement with the operators on May 31," said Walsh. "Mr. Hoover promised Senator Borah that if the operators made any increases he would seek to have the prices restored to what they were prior to his conference with the Senator."

Asks Official Finding.
"In view of Mr. Hoover's reluctance to admit that the operators have advanced prices to a certain class of British customers who are not in the 'spot market,' it is apparent that an official finding of fact must be made of the situation. In my judgment some official tribunal should make the necessary finding and determine the fact."

"If Mr. Hoover is not ready to convince Senator Borah and other Senators who are protesting against the reported increase in 'contract' prices that there has been no increase or that the prices have been restored to what they were before his conference with the operators on May 31, then an investigation of all the facts will be undertaken by the Senate Labor Committee. The issue so far as the committee is concerned is simply this: (1) What were the prices prior to the conference of May 31, and (2) what have been the prices (Continued on Page 2, Column 7.)

BAKER HEADS G. C. P. OF PENNSYLVANIA

Old Guard Supporter Heads State Committee—Pinchot Forces Routed.

By International News Service.
PHILADELPHIA, June 10.—W. Harry Baker was today elected chairman of the Republican State Committee by a vote of 81 to 32, in a hotly contested meeting. The result was a stunning blow to the Pinchot supporters.

United States Senator George Wharton Pepper was named a national committeeman by acclamation.
Senator Pepper's expressed indifference to the office was overcome at the last minute by Congressman William S. Vare, who nominated him.

Old Guard in Smiles.

"Old Guard" Republicans here wore smiles last night when they were informed of the election of Senator George Wharton Pepper as Republican national committeeman from Pennsylvania and of W. Harry Baker as Republican State chairman of that State.
The rout suffered by the supporters of Gifford Pinchot, Progressive Republican, whose winning of the Republican nomination for governor of Pennsylvania was heralded as a smash-up for the old Progressive machine, was hailed with satisfaction from "Old Guard" Senators and with expressions of regret from progressive Senators.

Baker's election was not unexpected here, however, in view of previous reports that Pepper and other "Old Guard" leaders of Pennsylvania would command more than enough votes to control the State committee (Continued on Page 2, Column 4.)

Ex-Kaiser Sues Papers On Charge of Slander

AMSTERDAM, June 10.—William Hohenzollern, ex-Kaiser of Germany, has brought suit, charging slander, against two German newspapers, which raked up an old story about the death of a naval lieutenant while William was ruling Germany, it was reported from Germany today.
The officer in question was Lieutenant Van Hacke. According to the story, he committed lese majeste by slapping the Kaiser's face. He was sentenced to death but was alleged to have committed suicide.

MISS HUGHES BECOMES BRIDE OF MR. WADDELL

President and Members of Cabinet With Wives Attend the Ceremony.

BRILLIANT GATHERING

Picturesque Bethlehem Chapel Scene of Beauty at Notable Wedding.

The President and Mrs. Harding paid honor to the first Cabinet bride of their Administration by attending the marriage yesterday of Miss Catherine Hughes, daughter of the Secretary of State and Mrs. Hughes, to Chauncey Lockhart Waddell, of New York.

The ceremony took place at 4 o'clock in picturesque Bethlehem Chapel of the Cathedral of St. Peter and Paul. Since the chapel is small, the company there was necessarily limited to relatives of the bride and bridegroom, a few intimate friends and a group of the officials with whom the Secretary of State is most closely associated.

It included, however, the Vice President and Mrs. Coolidge, members of the Cabinet and chiefs of diplomatic missions, with their families. For the reception at the Pan American Union, which followed the service, several hundred guests assembled. Representatives of practically every nation of the world were present; and political differences forgotten, they met amicably to wish one American girl and her bridegroom happiness.

Bowered in June Roses.
To decorate Bethlehem Chapel, under the shadow of the cathedral oaks, too lavishly would be like painting the lily, for it is a gem of Gothic architecture. But clusters of lilies were used on the altar, with lighted tapers gleaming in between; and the bride's attendants in their pastel tinted summer frocks, looked themselves like giant posies.

Escorted by Col. Clarence Sherrill and Comdr. Edward Capehart, brave in their uniforms, the President and Mrs. Harding arrived at the chapel, where the guests had assembled, and were escorted to the places reserved for them. The Vice President and Mrs. Coolidge were seated next to them and in the pews back of them were the Speaker of the House and Mrs. Gillett, the justices of the Supreme Court and their wives and members of the Cabinet and the ladies of their families.

On the other side of the aisle, back of Mrs. Hughes and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Waddell, parents of the bridegroom, were the places reserved for the diplomatic corps. There one noted the French Ambassador and Mme. Jusserand, the Spanish Ambassador and Mme. de Diano, the Chilean Ambassador and Mme. Mathieu, the Russian Ambassador, Mrs. Bakhmeteff, with his sister, Mme. Bazaroff, the Peruvian Ambassador and Mme. Pezef, the Chilean Ambassador and Mme. Mathieu, the Argentine Ambassador, Dr. LeBreton, the Italian Ambassador, Senator Ricci, the Belgian Ambassador, Barron de Cartier, the Minister of Cuba and Mme. de Cespedes, the Minister of Venezuela, Dr. Dominici, the Serbian Minister and Mme. Grouitch, the Swiss Minister and Mme. Peter, the Charge d'Affaires of Austria and Mme. Prochnik, the Charge d'Affaires of Panama, Mr. Lefevre, and other heads of missions.

The Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Mellon, was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Alice Mellon, and others in the pews reserved for "domestic officials" were the Secretary of War and Mrs. Weeks, the Postmaster General and Mrs. (Continued on Page 2, Column 2.)

HEARST GIVES HIS VIEWS ON GREAT BRITAIN

Masses Better Off Than Before War, He Finds—Mandates Advantage to Nation.

DEPRECATES WAR TALK

Attitude of Europe, He Argues, Is Plain Reason for U. S. Remaining Aloof.

By Universal Service.
LONDON, June 10.—Under a headline, "What I Think of Britain," by William Randolph Hearst, the Sunday Illustrated prints the following account of a conversation which Sir Hall Caine had with the publisher prior to his departure for Paris.

No Change in Ten Years.
Sir Hall Caine: "We understand it is a good many years since you were in London before. Can you say if there is any material change which chiefly impressed you?"

Mr. Hearst: "It is ten years since I have been in London. I see no material change. The astonishing thing to me is that there is no apparent injurious effect of the war. In fact, London, and England as far as I have seen, seem to me on the whole better off than they were before the war."

"There may be some lack of employment, apparently temporary and due to circumstances of the readjustment period, but wages are better than before the war, and that is an important matter. In fact, an improved standard of living on the part of the mass of the people is to my mind the most important matter in the life of a nation and the most important object of our democratic form of government and our occidental civilization."

"It is true that the wealthy classes in England are probably not so well off as they were before the war, if their altered situation can be regarded entirely from their own selfish standpoint. War conditions and post-war conditions have resulted in these favored classes not being as disproportionately favored as they formerly were."

Better for the People.
"Taxation and other obligations of citizenship have compelled the breaking up of some of the large estates and the distribution of the lands to smaller holders, but this, while it may be a disadvantage to the privileged class, is a distinct advantage to the country as a whole. In fact, the still further distribution of land and a still further equalization of classes would be a still greater benefit to England, just as it would benefit any other country."

"In addition to these improved conditions in England itself—conditions which will demonstrate their benefits very clearly and very promptly—the British empire has, of course, gained greatly by the acquisition of large territories suitable for colonization and possessed of great potential wealth. This will benefit the home country by withdrawing the surplus population and so tending to keep up the standard of wages and the improved standard of living."

"I cannot see anything but improvement (Continued on Page 2, Column 5.)

4 HURT AS RACING CAR LEAPS TRACK

Machine Driven by Bob Patterson in Smash-up at Baltimore.

By International News Service.
BALTIMORE, Md., June 10.—Four persons, one a woman, were seriously injured and a number of others were hurt this afternoon, when a racing automobile, driven by Bob Patterson of England, leaped from the track at Gentlemen's Driving Park and crashed into a crowd of spectators.

Patterson was driving No. 9 car, a light-blue machine. He was racing with Jimmie Gleason and was within a few yards of the finish.
A crowd of spectators were close to the track watching the race.
Something went wrong with Patterson's car, apparently with the steering wheel. The machine wavered for a minute and then raced over to the side of the track, struck an obstruction and rose into the air.

A group of about fifty men directly in the path of the car tried to scramble out of its way. Some were unable to do so and were struck by it as it came down.

Among the spectators hurt were: M. N. Walls, cut and bruised about the left side of face.
John S. Ryan, badly cut about the legs.

F. C. Castle, bruises and lacerations over the body.
Clarence Mills injured about the limbs.

Patterson and his mechanic were thrown from the car just as it rose into the air.

New Diamond Fields Found in South Africa

LONDON, June 10.—The discovery of a new diamond field in the New Mossburg District of the Union of South Africa has been attended by a spectacular rush of prospectors, rivaling California in the days of '49, according to a Central News dispatch from Johannesburg today.

EASTLAKE ON DUTY AT HAMPTON ROADS

Transferred to Naval Station For Employment in Repair of Motors.

HAMPTON, Va., June 10.—Roger Delano Eastlake, acquitted last fall of the murder of his wife at Colonial Beach, a crime for which Miss Sara Knox was sentenced to twenty years in the penitentiary, arrived here this week for duty at the Hampton Roads naval air station.

Eastlake, who has been in the navy for many years, is an aviation chief, machinist's mate. He was transferred to the air station here from the Washington Navy Yard, where he was stationed following his trial. At the time of the crime he was stationed at the naval proving station at Dahlgren, Md. He will be employed on the repair and adjustment of airplane motors, it was said at the base.

Eastlake testified for the prosecution at the trial of the nurse, by whose hands Mrs. Eastlake came to her death.
He married a Washington girl shortly after his acquittal.

College Degree for Aged Dry Advocate in Indiana

RICHMOND, Ind., June 10.—Timothy Nicholson, ninety-three, widely known for his work in behalf of prison reform and president of the Indiana Anti-Saloon League since its origin, will receive an honorary degree of doctor of laws from Earlham College.
Mr. Nicholson was a member of the board of trustees forty-nine years. Herbert C. Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, will be the principal speaker.

ATTEMPT TO KILL CONSUL

MILAN, Italy, June 10.—An unsuccessful attempt was made here today to assassinate the Jugo-Slavian consul.

BRITISH HOPE FOR DISSENSION AS EXCUSE TO INVADE AGAIN

Provisional President Tells of Momentous Issue at Polls June 16.

GIVES EXCLUSIVE TALK

Britain's Peace Gesture Made With Hope That Chaos Would Follow.

By HAYDEN TALBOT.
(Copyright, 1922, by Hayden Talbot.)

DUBLIN, June 10.—"What difference would it make to the bulk of citizens in New York so long as a fight was raging between Tammany Hall and a Republican machine, that permitted thugs to commit all kinds of crimes—whether the Monroe Doctrine was imperiled or not?"

This was the answer Michael Collins made to me today when I asked him how he could square his action in signing the treaty document with his coming to an agreement with Eamon de Valera.

Outsiders Don't Understand.
It is the first comprehensive utterance the provisional government leader has made for publication since the formation of the coalition government.

"The point that outsiders are bound to overlook," he continued, "is that no individual happening in Ireland can be taken by itself and accurately adjudged."

"I am not giving away any secret that is not perfectly well known by Irishmen in Ireland—however surprising it may sound to others—when I say that a large percentage of the men—leaders as well as followers—now in battle array behind and bags in commandeered buildings all over Dublin are our former comrades in arms."

English Expected Chaos.

"We know them and we know their point of view. It is our misfortune that they do not understand us and our point of view. It will be Ireland's misfortune if we are not able to convince the English government of the facts in the case."

"None of us who know the truth have any illusions in the matter. We know that England and Ulster both have been grievously disappointed that there should have been anything approaching a working agreement reached in the south of Ireland."

"We know that responsible English statesmen have confidently counted on our proving their contention that we are unfit to govern ourselves."

"The gesture which gained such world-wide approval as Lloyd George's giving us the measure of freedom, which the treaty undoubtedly gives us, was unquestionably made with the hope that out of it would come internal disorder that would justify the reconquest of Ireland by English armed forces with the world's acquiescence. "It is no exaggeration to say that a vast majority of the Irish people want complete independence—that kind of complete independence which offy a republican form of government gives—but it is equally as certain that only a negligible proportion of the Irish people are prepared to fight and die for such a measure of complete independence."

The American Revolution.

"And in saying this there is nothing of disparagement intended. When the United States waged its war of independence it had not been held in bondage for 750 years; it
